Kayla Olvera Hilario serves as Tribal Affairs Specialist at the California Complete Count – Census 2020 Office. She is responsible for overseeing outreach to 110 Federally-Recognized Tribes through tribal governments, two statewide tribal community-based organizations, and a media campaign.

Hilario comes to the Census Team with a wealth of experience working in and being a member of the Native American community. Most recently she worked at the Southern California American Indian Resource Center where she rose through the ranks to Programs Coordinator. Determined to be an asset to her community, she pursued a master's degree at the University of San Diego. Prior to that, she administered all aspects of childcare subsidy program on behalf of tribal governments throughout the state.

Hilario is an enrolled member of the Lone Band of Miwok Indians. She has held leadership roles in community organizations including board of directors for San Diego County Emergency Food and Shelter Program, Tribal Child Care Association of California, Sacramento County Local Child Care & Development Planning Council, and Election Committee Chair of her own Tribe.

About the Census:

California has launched a statewide effort to ensure an accurate and complete count of its residents in the 2020 census. This is unprecedented investment in a statewide education campaign. To reach more than 11 million of the hardest-to-count Californians, the Census Office has tapped local and tribal governments, community-based organizations, and so many more partners to serve as trusted messengers in our communities.

Key Dates:
